

COMMITTEE MEMBERS OF THE MONTH

This semester we had a lot of great committee members joining SWE. We had a wonderful semester because of your contribution. To appreciate your effort, the committee officers have nominated our last Committee Members of the Month for Spring 2016! They are:

Startup Expo: Cynthia Li and Lia Guy

Historian: Jessica Hsueh and Ashley Lin

OHP: Rachael Boyle, Hana McLaughlin, and Alicia Auduong

Website: Mrinalini Sugosh and Joy Tang

Social: Poorvi Acharya and Hannah He

Public Relations: Lucy Lei

Outreach: Nithi Narayanan

Congratulations to the nominees, and please keep up your passion of SWE. We hope to see everyone around next semester!

SO MAIN STACKS IS FULL, WHERE SHOULD I STUDY?

As we approach the end of the semester, it is more difficult to find a study spot on campus as well. If you do not want to waste your time on finding a study spot in Main Stacks, you may also want to try these places:

1. Dwinelle's Ishi Court - Dwinelle Hall is usually full of traffic, but the outdoor court near the language offices is relatively unknown and quiet.

2. Memorial Glade - Perfect to sit or lie in the shade or sunshine and get your readings done.

3. The Units' Lounges and Study Rooms

- Close to where you live, the residence halls' lounge and study rooms provide you convenience and safety. It is especially good for late-night studying.

4. Garbarini Lounge - While the Engineering Library can get really crowded, walking upstairs, and you will find a large open study space with outlets. If you need help with lower div engineering courses, you can also go to CAEE located on the same floor for tutoring!

5. Student Learning Center - Similar to CAEE, there are tutors for most lower div engineering courses and for writing. This is a great place to review for finals!

6. Martin Luther King Jr. Student Union - MLK Student Union provides a lot of study spots and even restaurants in case you get hungry. However, if you want to study there, go there early! it gets crowded fast.
