

Want to know what else you can do while in Berkeley? Here are some fantastic and fun things that are offered on and around campus.

- Visit the top of the Campanile for a 360-degree view of the campus and the Bay Area. It's the world's 3rd tallest bell tower, celebrating its 100th anniversary in 2015. More information available online.
- View the life-size cast of a Tyrannosaurus rex fossil, in the Valley Life Sciences Building. It was painstakingly reconstructed by the staff of the Museum of Paleontology. This museum also has a number of other free and interesting exhibits.
- Take a one-hour tour of the 90-year old California Memorial Stadium which reopened in August 2012 following a $321 million renovation project. In addition to the stadium, the tour will include the Simpson Center for Student-Athlete High Performance, the Lisa and Douglas Goldman Plaza, the Haas School of Business Innovation lab (iLab), and the Hall of Fame room. Space is limited and reservations are required. There is a tour fee of $3 for adults and $2 for youth 17 and younger. Reservations made online.
- Grab a coffee at the Free Speech Movement (FSM) Café inside the Moffit Undergraduate Library, check out the world news kiosks on your way in and browse the Free Speech Movement memorabilia on your way out. Try the espresso brownie while you are there, too!
- Walk through the architecturally impressive Bancroft Library, the headquarters of our university library system. As you enter, stop by the Morrison Reading Library just inside the main entrance on the right. Then go up the stairs to view the main reading room. View the current art exhibit in the Bancroft Library Gallery (free admission, open 10am-4pm Monday-Friday).
- View the current art exhibit in the C. V. Starr East Asian Library.
- If you have a car, take a drive up Strawberry Canyon, stopping at UC Berkeley's Botanical Garden on your way up to the Lawrence Hall of Science and the incredible views along Grizzly Peak Blvd., which is along the ridgeline.
- Walk or drive to North Berkeley's famous Gourmet Ghetto for lunch or dinner. About a mile north of campus, it's home to Chez Panisse, the Cheeseboard Pizza Collective and Cheese Shop, Masse's Pastries, Bar Cesar, the French Hotel, the Epicurious Garden, Cha-Ya, and more.
- Take a self-guided campus tour or a scheduled New Admit Campus Tour or an Undergraduate Engineering Tour.
- Visit the Faculty Club, a landmark redwood structure tucked in amid the trees of the Faculty Glade. Its focal point is the Great Hall, originally built in 1902.
- Can you find all the bear statues on campus?
- View the oldest campus building, South Hall, from 1873.
